PARTY AND CHARTER BOATS

Whether a novice or seasoned angler, diver or sight-seer, New Jersey party and charter boats offer year-round adventure on the State's bay and ocean waters. Party and charter boats let you take advantage of the skill and knowledge of experienced captains and well-equipped vessels at a reasonable cost. All party and charter boats are inspected and licensed by the U.S. Coast Guard for the passenger's safety; all captains are qualified and licensed.

New Jersey's extensive fleet consists of about 100 party and over 300 charter boats, which are docked in ports at all the major ocean inlets and bays. The basic difference between the two types of boats is that passengers on a party or head boat pay individually as they board on a first come basis until the boat is filled, while a charter must be reserved in advance by a group of passengers.

Party boats are large vessels, ranging from 60 to over 100 feet in length, that carry anywhere from 20 to 150 passengers. They provide anglers with the ability to go fishing at almost any time with no advanced planning, thus allowing them to go when the fish are running. Party boats sail on a daily schedule for designated species. Bait is provided and rods, reels and tackle may be rented onboard. Cold soda and beer are available; some boats even have snack bars that prepare hot food. The cost of the trip is dependent upon the type of fishing or activity; for example, bluefishing, which usually requires a long run and large amounts of chum and bait, is slightly more expensive than inshore wreck or bottom fishing. Children's fares are usually discounted.

Most ports have several party boats, offering a variety of different types of fishing. There are full, half and three-quarter day, morning, afternoon, evening and night trips available. Some party boats feature special long-distance trip for tuna, tilefish, cod or whale watching. Such trips usually require advanced reservations.

Some tips for fishing on party boats:

Read the fishing reports in the newspaper to find out which species are abundant. Listen to the marine weather forecast the night before a trip. If the forecast is unfavorable, go another day. Arrive at the dock early, especially on weekends, to secure a place on the boat. Take plenty of warm clothes; even during the summer, it can be cold on the water. Take something to hold your catch, preferably a cooler with ice.

Charter boats are typically smaller in size, between 25 to 60 feet in length. While most charter boats carry a maximum of 6 to 8 anglers, others carry much larger groups. Many party boats can also be reserved for large group charters. The primary advantage of a charter is that you can reserve the entire boat for a selected group. Charters should be arranged well in advance, up to 6 months ahead of time. Decisions that should be made prior to contacting a charter captain include:

- size of your group
- type (age, sex, experience) of people in group
- port of departure
- approximate date and time
- type (method, species) of fishing or activity

Charter captains require an advanced deposit. The trip fee varies considerably, depending upon the length of the trip and fuel and bait expenses. All bait and tackle is supplied on charter boats. Some boats will arrange to cater food if requested.

Know the Rules

When fishing on party and charter boats, it is essential to know the current state and federal regulations regarding the seasons, size limits, and possession limits of the species for which you are fishing. While the captain of the fishing vessel should be aware of the rules, knowing them ahead of time will help you plan your trip. Current fishing regulations are published in the Marine Issue of the Fish and Wildlife Digest which is either available free of cost at bait and tackle shops or by writing for a copy from:

Division of Fish and Wildlife
PO Box 418
Port Republic, NJ 08241

A summary of the marine fishing regulations is also available on the Division Internet Web Site at:
