

DEP to Present Universal Waste & Used Oil Seminar

Who is affected by this initiative?

Universal waste generators, handlers, transporters and destination facilities are encouraged to attend this event. Used oil generators, transporters, transfer facilities, processors, burners and marketers should also attend.

Why would I need help?

A goal of Compliance and Enforcement's strategic plan is to effectively balance compliance assistance, enforcement and education to achieve compliance and move the regulated community and the public towards environmental stewardship. The regulated community requested the return of Department sponsored compliance assistance events to provide them with information they need to better understand the regulations and maintain compliance. If you are involved with the collection, transportation or disposal of any of the following it would be beneficial for you to attend this seminar.

- Used oil
- Thermostats
- Batteries
- Antifreeze
- Lamps (light bulbs)
- Consumer electronics
- Latex paints
- Oil-based finishes
- Mercury-containing devices

What compliance assistance is available?

The Bureau of Hazardous Waste Compliance & Enforcement developed a Hazardous Waste Training Opportunities webpage to keep the regulated community informed about training, to facilitate on-line seminar registration, to provide updated regulatory information, and to survey the regulated community regarding the type of educational programs and general information they need.

The Bureau of Hazardous Waste Compliance & Enforcement is providing a free Universal Waste & Used Oil Seminar on October 1, 2008. This seminar will provide a thorough overview of State and Federal Universal Waste and Used Oil (Class D recyclable materials) regulations. The seminar will also include both industry's perspective and inspector's viewpoint on compliance with the regulations.
