BACKGROUND: Hooked on Fishing - Not on Drugs is a nationally recognized program created by the Future Fisherman Foundation. The goal of New Jersey's Hooked on Fishing program is to encourage school-aged children to avoid tobacco, drug and alcohol usage by providing alternative activities that involve learning to fish, appreciating aquatic and environmental resources, and developing positive life skills. The program provides students with access to these extracurricular outlets that utilize New Jersey's incredible outdoor recreational assets.

The core program message is that you don't need to use tobacco, alcohol or drugs to have fun! It's the type of program that not only will help reduce drug and alcohol use in youth, but will also bring families closer together by giving them an inexpensive outdoor recreation activity they can all participate in.
