Nicki's Nose Knows

NJ State Park Police K-9 Unit

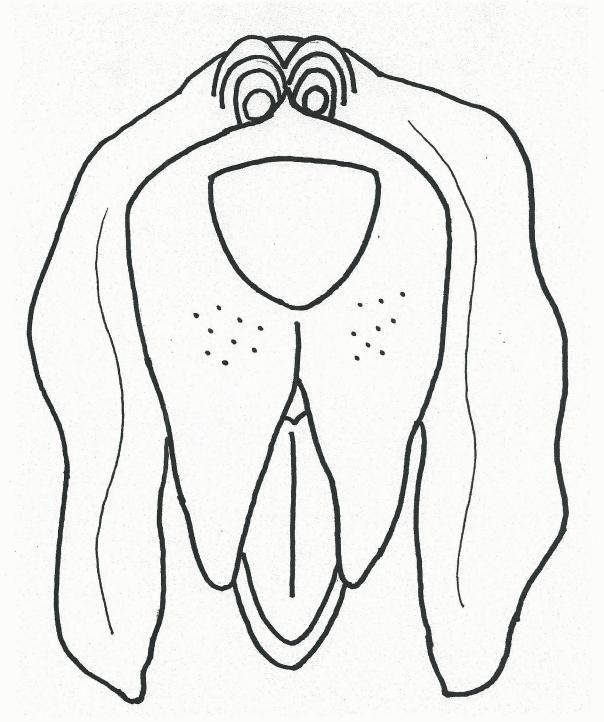

Nicki is a Police Bloodhound who works in New Jersey's State Parks.

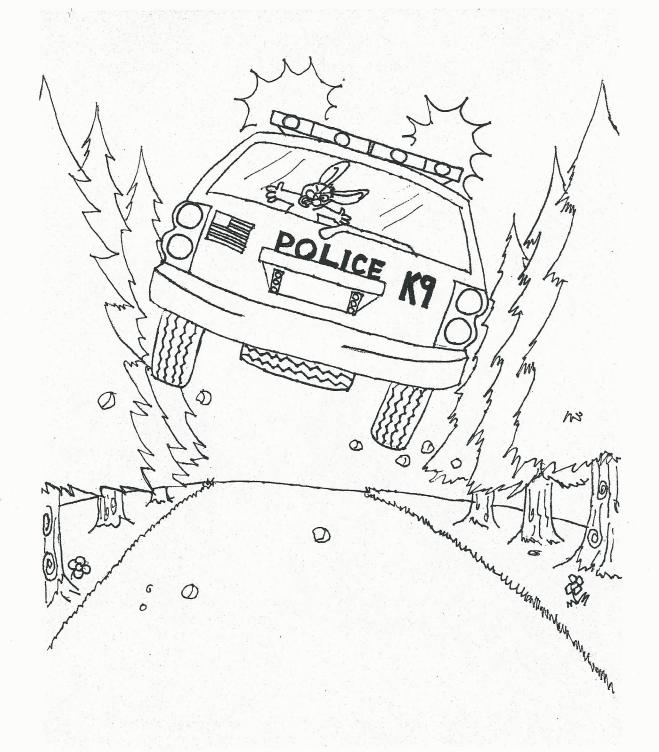

Her job is to help her Park Police Handler find lost and missing people

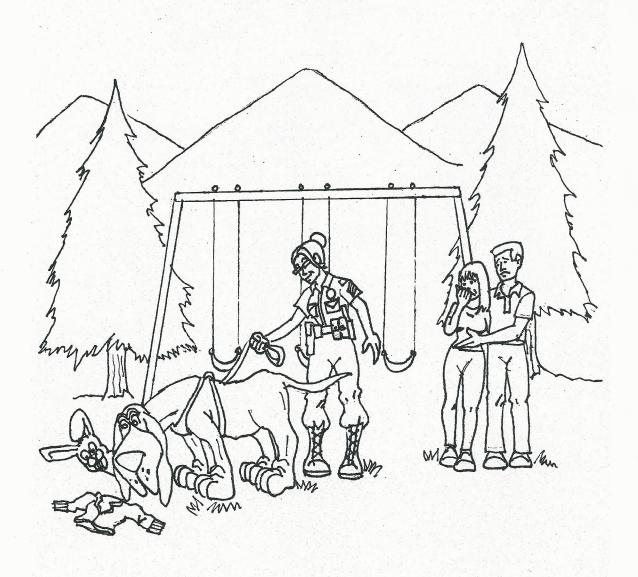

How does she do that? She uses her powerful nose! Her long ears and wrinkles in her face help too.

One summer day, Nicki got a call that a child had gotten lost at a park.

Nicki and her partner responded to the park to search for the lost child.

Nicki was put in her harness and took a sniff of the child's jacket, that their Mom and Dad had with them.

Off they went!

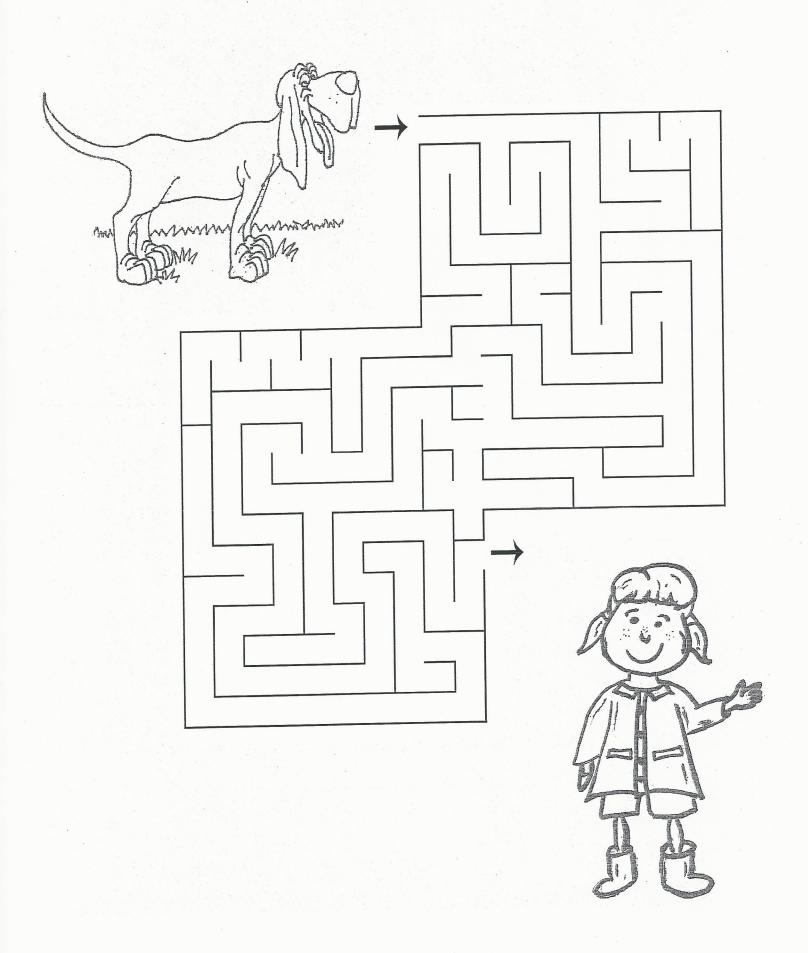

Nicki's nose took them through the woods, where they soon found Johnny sitting under a big tree.

Bloodhound Word Search

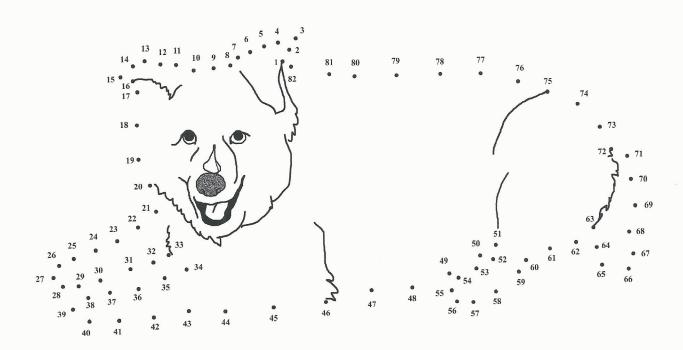

LNXYZYQZGESDLGJFJLEK RIJKVZWAHTEIRRFZSNMO TKASCLUOBDANAISEINAU UJRRTPOVDNRTNOJLSTOX NOSETAZXNUCSOSDCHCZI YSJRIKTAAOHTEAECAWLR BWRINKLESFARENTMRMCU X S A K Z C M N P N N L T J G N N R J A HRVOXRMVCADABOWTEGUO D N U O H D O O L B R V O F R U S N I X TKIRATPFOTEKVFWHSIXR BIMHULYGIASTPXZGBKJD MANITTOCOUCGUOAWZCBO HIBULQLSQAUTGMLUZALG RASAEEETTZEUWNTIKROR V M L S I N R X M A B T H W C C C T Z P MOGMIEIERLHOONKOVESC F R U C A N W N I K C I N D K L G W U Q UDPTVUGQAYNQSBGIYRXH Q A S T I Z Z H X C C K W R O X W G C P

BLOODHOUND CANINEUNIT DOG FOUND HARNESS LEADLINE LOST MISSING NICKI NJSTATEPARKPOLICE
NOSE
SCENTARTICLE
SEARCHANDRESCUE
SNIFF
TRACKING
TRAIL
TREATS
WRINKLES

What path will Nicki take to find Sally?

Somebody forgot to finish drawing this dog. Can you help to finish it? Just start at the number 1 and follow the numbers up to the highest one on the page.

This dog isn't a bloodhound like Nicki, but all dogs are canines. There are all different breeds of dogs in K-9 Units, but German Shepherds, Belgian Malinios and Labrador Retrievers are some of the most common today.

Look at the tips of your fingers. See all those grooves and lines? No one else in the world has the same fingerprints as you! Did you know that no one else has the same scent as you? That means that to a dog, you smell different than everyone else. That's how a bloodhound like Nicki finds people. She gets the scent of a person and follows the trail of that scent until she catches up with them! Can you find your way through this fingerprint?

What to do if you get lost

Hopefully, you will never get lost, because you know to stay with your parents, friends, or group when you are away from home. But, just in case you find that you have gotten lost, here are nine Rules of Survival to keep you safe:

- 1. Stay together if you are with a friend or pet (you can share body heat).
- 2. Stay in one place or area, do not wander.
- 3. Keep yourself warm.
- 4. Find a waiting place (not a hiding place).
- 5. Put out something bright for searchers to see.
- 6. Make yourself look bigger.
- 7. Don't lie on bare ground (it will take your heat).
- 8. Don't eat anything you're not sure of.
- 9. Stay away from rivers and lakes.

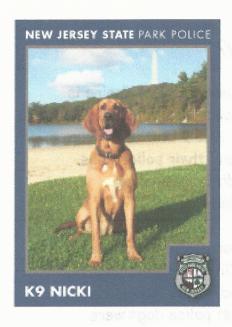

How to approach a dog safely

Even the friendliest dogs can be uncomfortable meeting new people and may bite if startled. There are a few simple rules for meeting a dog:

- 1. Before you pet someone's dog, ask the dog's guardian for permission.
- 2. If they say it's OK, approach slowly and quietly.
- 3. Once you have permission to pet a dog, slowly bring your hand towards the dog from the side, not from above. Keep your hand closed and let the dog sniff you first. Then pet the dog's side and back gently.
- 4. Never hug someone's dog, it could scare them.

Lastly, there are times when you should avoid saying hello to a dog.

- 1. You never want to sneak up on or pet a dog when it is eating or sleeping, you may startle it.
- 2. Never pet a dog who is playing with a toy. They may be protective of the toy and think that you are going to try to take it.
- 3. Never try to pet a dog who is in a car. Most dogs will protect that space.
- 4. Never pet a dog who is chained up or behind a fence. Most dogs naturally protect their property and home.

Nicki is pictured here at her favorite state park. Do you know which park it is? Here's a hint: The monument in the background of the photo is located at the highest point in New Jersey... See if you can find the name of the park from the list of New Jersey's State Parks and Forests below.

State Parks

Allaire State Park Bulls Island State Park Cheesequake State Park Cranberry State Park Double Trouble State Park Farny State Park Garden State Park High Point State Park Island Beach State Park Liberty State Park Monmouth Battlefield State Park Musconetcong State Park Parvin State Park Rancocas State Park Round Valley State Park Stephens State Park Voorhees State Park Washington Rock State Park

State Forests

Abram S Hewitt State Forest
Belleplain State Forest
Jackson State Forest
Lebanon State Forest
Penn State Forest
Stokes State Forest
Worthington State Forest

Barnegat Lighthouse State Park Cape May Point State Park Corson's Inlet State Park Delaware and Raritan Canal State Park Edison State Park Fort Mott State Park Hacklebarney State Park Hopatcong State Park Kittatinny Valley State Park Long Pond Ironworks State Park Mount Laurel State Park Palisades State Park Princeton Battlefield State Park Ringwood State Park Spruce Run State Park Swartswood State Park Washington Crossing State Park Wawayanda State Park

Bass River State Forest Green Bank State Forest Jenny Jump State Forest Norvin Green State Forest Rough Mountain State Forest Wharton State Forest

What's a K-9 Unit Anyway?

So, what is a K-9 Unit? K-9 is an abbreviation for the word canine. Canine is another word for dog, so every dog is a canine. Many police departments have K-9 Units, like the New Jersey State Park Police. A K-9 Unit is a group of people called Handlers (because they handle a K-9) and their police dogs. Each pair is called a team. K-9 Units vary in size with different police departments and not all police departments have K-9 Units.

So, what breeds of dogs can become police dogs? All sorts of dogs are used for police work. The most commonly seen are German Shepherds and Belgian Malinois, but Labrador Retrievers are common and Bloodhounds (like Nicki) are still used, along with several other breeds. The first police dogs were bloodhounds. They were used to find bad guys back in the 1800's. Every police dog is trained specifically to assist police in law enforcement work.

So, what different jobs do these dogs do? There are patrol dogs who enforce public order. They can chase and hold a suspect for their handler and they protect their handler. There are detection dogs who are trained to sniff for specific things. That can include drugs, explosives and even cellular phones. Beagles are used in airports to locate items that are not permitted, such as certain fruit! There are arson dogs, who search for accelerants that are used to start a fire. There are cadaver dogs who are trained to find people who have died. They can even find someone who is under water! Some dogs are trained to do more than one job, they're called duel purpose dogs.

Finally, there are search and Rescue (SAR) dogs. They are trained to find people. Some are air scent dogs, who are trained to find any person in general and it's up to the handler to determine if it's the person they are looking for. Then there's the scent discriminating dog (like Nicki). Those dogs look for a specific person. They are usually called trailing or tracking dogs, because they track someone or follow their trail. Police use these dogs to locate missing, lost and wanted persons.

Every person has their own unique scent. When a trailing dog is taken to where someone was last seen and given that person's scent with a scent article, they follow an invisible trail the person left behind. Hopefully they follow it all the way to the person! Many breeds of dog can do this work, but Nicki thinks that Bloodhounds do it the best!

Thanks for this activity book goes to:

New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection

The New Jersey State Park Police

NJSPP K9 Unit

Katie Drake for drawing Sally in Nicki's maze Rosemary Ross for creating the fingerprint maze Eric Reinholt for his assistance with the cover

