DEAR STUDENTS AND FAMILIES,

This workbook was developed to support families in developing self-advocacy and self-determination skills that can support each child's path to a meaningful life.

The planning for a good adult life starts now. Self-advocacy skills are essential for all people and having them helps children express to educators and others what they need to succeed.

No matter the person's age, everyone has strengths and preferences that can be shared. If your child has a disability and is supported by an Individualized Education Program (IEP), they also have an IEP team. Your child is invited to their IEP meeting any time transition planning is discussed (i.e., planning for adult life). The IEP includes transition planning beginning with the school year that the student turns age 14, or younger if appropriate. Parents and their child are a key part of this team and with their input, an effective IEP can be developed.

Directions:

This tool can be used in part or whole to help bring person-centered information into the transition to adult life planning that is part of the IEP. You can share the information in these activities before and during the IEP meeting with your case manager.

For more information please visit the New Jersey Department of Education Office of Special Education Policy webpage.

Terms we use and what they mean

IEP: The Individualized Education Program is designed to meet each eligible child's unique education needs and when appropriate, includes planning for a successful adult life.

IEP Team: Includes the parent, the student when transition planning will be discussed or younger when appropriate, the case manager, teachers and other educators, and others as appropriate.

DDD: The Division of Developmental Disabilities assures the opportunity for individuals with developmental disabilities to receive quality services and supports, participate meaningfully in their communities, and exercise their right to make choices.

DVRS: The New Jersey Division of Vocational Rehabilitation Services works to enable eligible individuals with disabilities to achieve an employment outcome consistent with their strengths, priorities, needs, abilities, and capabilities.

Person-Centered Planning: Is a holistic strength-based process that involves supporting people in making well-informed choices and identifying respectful supports.

Self-Advocacy: Being able to express to others what you want, what you need, and what you don't want.

Self-Determination: A process by which a person controls their own life.

Modifications: A modification changes what the student is taught or expected to learn (e.g., the content of instruction).

Accommodations: An accommodation changes how the student is taught or expected to learn (e.g., instructional methods used, support strategies, environmental factors, etc.).

IEP Scavenger Hunt

Before you and your parents are able to contribute to the IEP it is important to know what's in it. Work together to identify some key areas. Parents, for this activity, have a copy of your child's most recent IEP. If you don't have one, request one from your child's case manager.

1. Circle the name of your case manager and the date of your last IEP meeting.
2. Circle three people who attended your last IEP meeting.
3. Do you have any related services? If so, circle them.
4. Circle your strengths, interests, and preferences in your IEP.
5. Circle the modifications and accommodations listed in your IEP.

Please answer these questions:

Has anything changed since your last IEP meeting that you want to put into your new IEP?

What are your new strengths, interests, or preferences since your last IEP?

Do any modifications and accommodations listed in your last IEP still help you? Is there anything you would like to add, remove, or modify?

What do you want to make sure gets discussed at your next IEP meeting?

Tip: Accommodations versus Modifications. An easy way to remember the difference is that an accommodation changes the way the student learns, but a modification changes what they are expected to learn.

My Case Manager

What does a case manager do?

A case manager is someone from your school who helps you, your parents, and your teachers put information together in your IEP. If you are having a difficult time in school or have questions about your education, you can talk to your case manager anytime, not just at an IEP meeting.

My case manager's name is:

My case manager's office is:

Write a postcard to your case manager to say, “Hello.” You can mail it to them or bring it to their office. Share something about yourself you would like them to know!

Tip: The case manager needs to know what is important to you and your parents and your hopes and dreams. Remember, decisions at IEP meetings put you on a path towards your future.

Hello!

POSTCARD

My Inner Circle

Making big decisions and speaking up for yourself is easier when you have people you trust to help you. We call these people your ALLIES!

Directions

For each question below, write the name of one person you trust. This can be someone who cares about you at home, school, or other place in the community. These can also be friends. Try to use each person's name only one time.

1. Who is the person you would call or text FIRST when something really exciting happens to you?
2. Who is someone you would bring with you to a doctor's appointment if you were sick?
3. Who is a person you would want to spend your entire weekend with on vacation?
4. Who is someone that makes you feel safe at school?

The diagram consists of five circles. In the center is a green circle with the text "ME" in bold black letters. Surrounding this central circle are four white circles, each with a bold black number. Circle 1 is at the top left, circle 2 is at the top right, circle 3 is at the bottom left, and circle 4 is at the bottom right. All circles have a dark green outline.

Tip: Decision-making is an important skill that we can learn over time. It is important to practice! Big decisions come from knowing how to make small decisions. To learn more about Supported-Decision Making click here!

Great Things About

It is very important to tell others what your gifts and talents are and what you do well. Write 5 things that you think you are awesome at doing.

Tip: It is our strengths, gifts and capacities that help us ultimately be successful. Learn and own your gifts, share them with your case manager!

My Tutorial

Directions

Develop a tutorial all about YOU, so others can quickly learn about who you really are!

Step 1 My Key Features

What makes you happy? What/Who do you really care about?
What frustrates or aggravates you?

Step 2 My Instructions

What can teachers do to help you be more successful at school?
What does NOT help you at school?

Step 3 Troubleshooting

What makes you have a bad day? Thinking about at school and at home, what helps? Is there something others can say or do to help you feel better?

Tip: Over time, students can learn what works and doesn't work for them in and out of the classroom. This includes how their disability impacts them. Think about how to have these conversations, so that you become your best advocate at school, at home, and in the community!

My Vision for the Future

What does an awesome high school experience look like for you? What classes would you take, what would you do for fun, what clubs, sports, etc. would you be involved in?

High School Dreams:

Let's think about your future after you graduate high school and when you are an adult. What does a happy and meaningful life look like to you? Think about work (i.e., your desired career), education (e.g., college, trade school, etc.), relationships, transportation, and what you will want to do in your free time (e.g., hobbies, sports, leisure activities)!

Big Future Dreams:

Goals and Action Steps

List three things you want to try to do and/or learn in middle school.

List three things you want to try to do and/or learn at home.

Tip: It is important to talk about the future and more important to connect those hopes and dreams to action. What can be done now to help you achieve your goals for the future? These are small steps that will help you define and reach your dreams!

For Students and Families

- What will make you most comfortable at the next IEP meeting?
- If you only had 2 minutes to tell educators what they needed to know about your child, what would you share?
- Would you feel comfortable having your child attend the IEP meeting?
- If not, how can the IEP team accommodate your child so you would be comfortable with them attending?
- If your child does not attend the IEP meeting, what do you think they would want you to share on their behalf?

SPECIAL THANKS

The Person-Centered Approaches in Schools and Transition Project (PCAST) would like to thank our partners at the NJ Department of Education, Office of Special Education, all of our educators, students, and their families in New Jersey for making this learning possible.

A special thanks to the Brick Township High School, Pennsville School District, Haddon Heights High School, and Eastern Regional High School for their lesson development, which contributed greatly to this workbook.
