About the Office of Research and Information (ORI):

We are NJ’s premier source for economic, labor market, and demographic data and analysis. We drive innovation by embracing diversity, creative thinking, and collaboration with internal and external stakeholders. ORI’s services and solutions help New Jerseyans – students, jobseekers, business owners, and policy makers alike – make informed, data-driven decisions. Our team is responsible for:

- Developing, analyzing, and disseminating labor market and demographic data;
- Preparing reports for the State and Federal government agencies that fund Labor’s workforce and worker benefit programs;
- Providing performance measurement, business intelligence, and evaluation services that promote the continuous improvement of Labor programs;
- Developing user-centric digital tools to guide New Jerseyans’ career planning activities;
- Overseeing the review and approval of NJ’s private career schools and maintain the Eligible Training Provider List; and
- Serving as the data backbone for strategic enforcement and compliance activities undertaken by Labor’s worker protection programs.

About the Role:

Are you passionate about quality and equity for learners and workers in training and employment outcomes and want the opportunity to do transformative and innovative work in government with a positive impact on New Jersey workers, and learners? The newly revitalized Center for Occupational Employment Information (COEI) is seeking to hire an Employment and Training Specialist 1 to join the Training Evaluation Unit (TEU). COEI is one of three NJDOL Office of Research and Information divisions.

The TEU is responsible for reviewing and approving private career schools in collaboration with the New Jersey Department of Education and maintaining the Eligible Training Provider List (ETPL) on New Jersey Training Explorer. In New Jersey, only ETPL providers may receive state or federal training dollars. Working with our labor market analysts, the TEU also publishes the labor-demand occupation list and determines eligibility for local training program exceptions.

As an Employment and Training Specialist 1 in the TEU, you will work on a team of employment and training specialists using Intelligrants (IGX), the new digitized system of record for Training Providers, streamlining the private career school and ETPL application and reporting processes, communicate with training providers, and maintain accurate documentation.

Employment and Training Specialist 1 is responsible for:

- Reviewing and approving ETPL and Private Career School initial and renewal applications.
- Adhering to the Training Evaluation Unit goals, policies, and procedures.
- Reviewing and analyzing laws, regulations, and other Federal and State documents related to employment & training.
- Providing technical assistance and training to Training Providers and Local Areas.
- Establishing and maintaining cooperative working relationships with those interested or involved in the work of the program.
- Understanding the types of employment and training programs likely to be used by the client population served.
