We are passionate about the visual arts and celebrate its unique ability to encourage communication, understanding, and even compassion across all boundaries. Through art, even the most divergent groups of people can find a common ground. Through our local, national, and international connections, we have provided over 780 artists the opportunity to display their works and create even more successes in the future. First established in 2007, Alfa Art Gallery has made this possible through 14 years of growth and development. This is exemplified not only by our spectacular exhibitions but also by our proactive online involvement. By using online programs, from YouTube to the virtual exhibition program, ArtSteps, the Gallery continued to serve its community by maintaining a space for various artists to express themselves, even during the recent pandemic crisis. As a part of the multicultural hub that is New Brunswick, Alfa holds a responsibility to showcase local artists and captivate new, more diverse audience members from its community. The city is a flourishing location for artistic growth. With the help of local organizations, Alfa Art Gallery is able to benefit these artists through programs, including the New Brunswick Art Salon exhibition, which occurs several times throughout the year. During the opening reception of each exhibition, student and community members are readily welcomed into the serene yet engaging artistic environment provided by Alfa Art Gallery. Together, they are given the space to discuss, in great depth, the artworks alongside the artists who created those works. With these moments in mind, Alfa Art Gallery continues to enrich itself with new contacts and connections with those of Middlesex County.

Hub City Opera and Dance Company

New Brunswick, NJ

Hub City Opera and Dance Company contributes to the Central NJ Community on three levels:

1. BRINGING TOGETHER.

Beyond Traditional Borders.

Hub City Opera and Dance Company brings together amateurs, students, leading and young professionals, and combines the artistic disciplines of voice (solo and chorus), instrumental music (solo and orchestra), dance, and visual arts (set design, light, costume, makeup) to create a unique and new theatrical experience. We perform rare, little known or new works, and surprise our audience with novel and unexpected interpretations and new combinations of artistic disciplines.

2. REACHING OUT.

Promoting Artistic Education.

Hub City Opera and Dance Company sees artistic education as a core mission:

Elementary and Middle Schools — Specially designed programs bringing opera and dance to public schools in order to inspire young people and to grow future audiences.

Colleges — Collaboration with Rutgers and other schools allow students of various artistic fields to gain practical experience and to earn college credit through participation.

Civic Institutions — Open rehearsals and concerts, free performances in senior centers, libraries, and churches/temples.

3. SUPPORTING TALENT.

We hire young artists.

Hub City Opera and Dance Company supports young artists from the region by hiring talented singers, dancers, visual artists, or lighting designers for its productions. And "hiring" means: We pay them.
