Ms. Levy shared that new members, John Armato and Eileen Fishman, had been appointed to the Council in June, as well as Moira Nelson who had been confirmed in March. She asked the new members to share a bit about their background as well as what made them become interested in the work of the Governor's Council.

Ms. Levy also shared that she and Deputy Director Rebecca Alfaro continue to work with the Governor's office on options for alternative funding streams and long-term sustainability for the program and also continue to be engaged in collaborative planning for the state's harm reduction efforts. Ms. Levy shared information about the opioid settlement fund that she had received from the Governor's office. Ms. Alfaro and Director of Prevention and Planning, Sara Thode, have been in conversation with the county directors and coordinators about the settlement fund process and have received input about the need for the Alliance program to be involved. Ms. Levy will continue to keep the Council updated as things move forward.
